NOTES

DESCRIPTION

This cute renovation project is South-facing and sits in its 1180m² plot of flat gardens with plenty of space for a vegetable-patch, planting fruit trees and why not even installing a pool to make the most of this sun-filled space !

A septic tank was installed up to the house in 2016, which is always an important and expensive part of a renovation project to have done and dusted.

The house itself is made up of 2 communicating buildings, a new double-glazed door leads into the 1st building boasting a good-sized living room, complete with its original fireplace, and leading through to the second building which encompasses the kitchen, utility area with hot water tank, a separate toilet, and the stairs leading up to the 1st floor.

The landing area has a functioning shower cubicle which was meant as a temporary area to shower during the renovations, and leads through to two connecting bedrooms, the back bedroom looks over the grounds. From one of these bedrooms a fold-down ladder leads up to an attic which has a window and basic flooring installed, and is just waiting to be finished and turned into a cosy bedroom nestled in the eaves.

The electricity is functioning but is not up to a conforming standard. All of the windows are single-glazed, some have shutters.

A barn is attached to the house, it has been divided in two parts by a wall, with one side being remaining a...
