DESCRIPTION

The main house 228,69m² features a distinctive architectural detail above the entrance: a "guetteur," or Gothic granite window seat, located on the first floor. The house was originally fortified with narrow arrow-slit windows, designed to provide defensive protection while limiting exposure.

The entrance opens into a welcoming hall, where a staircase leads to the first floor. To the right of the hall, you'll find a bathroom, a separate shower room, and an additional WC.

On the left is the kitchen and dining area, an impressive 49m² space adorned with massive oak and chestnut beams spanning the ceiling. The floor, an ancient pisé surface, is composed of pale coffee-colored river pebbles arranged in a mosaic pattern symbolizing water (drops), the sun (circles), and the moon. There is plenty of room for a kitchen table. The kitchen also boasts a grand open fireplace and was renovated in 2021, featuring modern appliances powered by bottled gas.

A south-facing door leads from the kitchen to a terrace shaded by a pergola entwined with a thriving vine. A modern sundial, carved in stone and inscribed with the phrase "Le soleil est Rapyde"—a wordplay on time and the location—adds a unique touch. The south-facing façade of the house stretches over 40 meters in length.

Adjoining the kitchen/dining area is a spacious sitting room, also 49m². This cozy retreat also includes a wood-burning stove and built-in bookcases.

On the first floor, there are 4 bedrooms plus a...
