IN BRIEF

If you are looking for a home rich in history with a discreet exterior and a spectacular interior, this fascinating property could be for you.

Featuring a fireplace believed to date from the 15th century and an impressive living room reminiscent of a baronial hall, with carved trefoil windows and stone window seats, the house is full of character and architectural charm. Almost all windows, including those in the attic, are double-glazed and a new heating system has recently been installed.

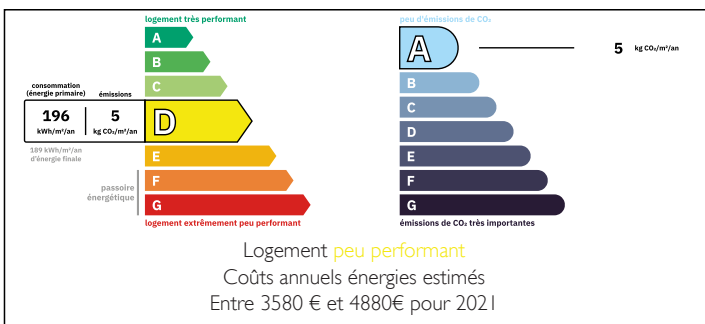

The property is ready to live in as a two-bedroom home, with the attic already prepared to create two additional bedrooms, an office and a bathroom.

The outbuildings are equally impressive, including a vaulted wine cellar, large barns, a potting shed, a traditional bread oven and an old laundry room.

Located in a peaceful hamlet on the Vienne side of the...
