DESCRIPTION

This restored stone property in Normandy has been enjoyed as a holiday home by the current owners for approximately 30 years and reflects a style of living often sought in the region, combining traditional features with a practical layout.

Arranged over three floors, the accommodation is centred around an open-plan kitchen and dining area on the ground floor, providing a sociable and functional space for everyday use. A spiral staircase leads to the first-floor lounge of over 25m², offering a separate living area with good proportions. From here, a second staircase continues to the upper floor, where the bedroom and en-suite shower room are located. Positioned at the top of the house, this space benefits from exposed wooden beams, a feature commonly associated with period Norman properties.

In addition to the main house, the property includes an annex which has been adapted to provide further independent space. On the ground floor, this area incorporates its own kitchen and bathroom, having been previously arranged within the sunroom to accommodate visiting elderly parents. Above, two additional rooms offer flexibility for a range of uses, including guest accommodation, a craft or hobby space, or a home office.

The external areas have been arranged to support both day-to-day living and time spent outdoors. A terrace and pergola create a sequence of usable spaces, allowing for outdoor dining and sheltered seating throughout the seasons. The surrounding setting is rural, with open views across the Normandy countryside.

The property is situated within the Manche...
