18th arrondissement - Located on the Right Bank of the Seine River, is one of the most popular areas of Paris, hosting the district of Montmartre, which contains a hill dominated by the Sacre Coeur basilica, as well as the famous Moulin Rouge. Thanks to its sweeping viewpoints, art-drenched history and charming, village-like streets, the district attracts many visitors and colourful street artists. Some of the world's greatest artists lived here, notably Picasso, Matisse, Max Jacob, Utrillo and Renoir. The area also includes the lively neighbourhoods such as Barbes and its bustling markets. Countless articles have been written about what's hip, new and happening about this fading Red Light district slowly replaced by a BoBo crowd (bourgeois bohemian). The area main sights and attractions includes the Montmartre Neighbourhood, Montmartre Cemetery, Place des Tertres, Le Moulin de la Galette (real windmill and the subject of a painting of the same name by Renoir), Dali Museum...
