DESCRIPTION

The Property

Set back behind white gates and picket fencing, with a broad mainly-grassed parking area opening beyond them, this is a classic South Charente villa of the kind that's increasingly hard to find: a proper 1960s "pavillon" raised elegantly above its own basement level, with a wrap-around terrace on wrought-iron balustrades that circles the first floor. Terracotta pantile roof, crisp white render, stone detailing and pale-blue shutters frame it; in the garden, a large oleander, when in full flower, gives the approach real Mediterranean charm.

Inside, nearly 160 square metres of living space are arranged over two levels. The main floor has an entrance hall leading to a generous living room and kitchen, with two double bedrooms, a bathroom and a WC. The terrace off the living and dining rooms is the heart of the house - and one of its best features: it commands impressive views across the valley to the Château de Talleyrand, which fills the horizon above the town. Evening apéritifs out there will be hard to beat.

A staircase leads down to the basement level ("sous sol") - and this is where the house earns its flexibility. There's a further bedroom with its own shower room and WC (ideal for guests, teenagers, or a rental letting), plus extensive storage, a gymnasium, and boiler room. The lower level keeps the main floor cool in summer and gives the house that useful "service under the floor" layout typical of well-built villas of this era.
